CTC – EUROPA – NETZWERK

International besteht eine Zusammenarbeit der Länder und Akteure, die mit CTC arbeiten. Der LPR nimmt teil an dem „International CTC Committee“, in dem auch die USA, Australien, Großbritannien, die Niederlande und Kroatien vertreten sind. Einzelne Akteure führen darüber hinaus länderübergreifende Forschungsprojekte durch.

Da auf der europäischen Ebene bisher keine Kooperation stattfand, hat der LPR 2009 ein europäisches CTC - Netzwerk angeregt. Dieses Netzwerk erhält für die Jahre 2013 – 2015 eine Förderung der Europäischen Union (Programm ISEC, Prevention of and Fight against Crime).

Projekt: „Making CTC work at the European level“ (1/2013 - 12/2015)

ENGLISH

Crime Prevention Council of Lower Saxony (CPC)

With the founding of the Crime Prevention Council of Lower Saxony (CPC) in 1995, a forum for common efforts to prevent crime and increase the citizens' feeling of security was established. The underlying philosophy was that for investigating and countering the causes of crime effectively, shared responsibilities and strategies of society as a whole were required.

More than 250 member organisations from all relevant social sectors, among them some 200 local prevention bodies and networks, contribute with their expertise to concepts concerning public security and support their realisation. Supporting them and linking up their efforts is the primary task of the Crime Prevention Council of Lower Saxony and its secretariat, which is part of the Department of Justice. Several of its projects are funded in the context of a framework-partnership with the European Commission, additional support is provided by the Federal Government and foundations such as the Klosterkammer Hannover.

Background

In Germany, crime prevention is the responsibility of all three levels of government (Federal, State and Municipal). Due to the constitutional principle of subsidiarity, the role of non-governmental organisations and local communities has precedence over activities at the state- or federal level. To coordinate these efforts, crime prevention councils have been established in many municipalities and most states. State crime prevention councils support and advise local crime prevention bodies and networks, disseminate scientific findings and practical experience concerning crime prevention, analyse crime trends and advise the government on issues of crime policy and interdepartmental cooperation in this field.

Objectives

The Crime Prevention Council of Lower Saxony

- strengthens crime prevention at the municipal level
- develops concepts and describes the necessary framework for their implementation
- promotes the ensuring and improvement of quality in crime prevention

European Society of Criminology

Conferences

The annual conferences of the Society provide an opportunity for the members to present papers on the results of their own research projects as well as learn about the research being done elsewhere in Europe. The conferences are also an occasion where the members can meet each other and discuss on mutual research interests; the meetings have already proved to be an important platform for new pan-European research initiatives.

At the annual conference a general assembly of the Society is convened to make decisions on the affairs of the Society and to give advice on the board members for their upcoming term.
